Rebekah's Testimony

How Yah carried a mother through the loss of her son and her marriage, delivered her, and became the love of her life.

Rebekah. All Scripture from the World English Bible, divine name rendered YHWH and Elohim.

WHERE I STARTED

I was raised in a middle class Southern Baptist home. My parents had both grown up very poor, so they gave me good morals and frugal habits. We went to church, and I thought we were the perfect family.

When I was 13, my parents divorced. I felt anger, confusion, and betrayal. I thought they were perfect, and my world shattered. I did not think anything could ever be the same. I carried bitterness and unforgiveness for a long time. (Hebrews 12:15)

My parents were so shattered and worn out by their own lives that no one was watching over me. I did not get the discipline and structure I needed. I needed to be watched more closely, and instead I was given more freedom. I want my children to understand this: you can think one thing is true about your life and find out it is another.

THE REBELLION YEARS

From 13 to 21 I ran straight into rebellion. I tried drugs, cigarettes, alcohol, and sexual sin. I was not raised to be careless. I just had freedom and no boundaries, and I did not know who I was.

MY FIRST BABY

When I was 21, I had my first baby, outside of marriage. That changed my life forever. I understood unconditional love for the first time.

I married his father. My family had taught me that is what you do, and I was trying to make right what I had done. I married for the wrong reasons. He was not a believer. He pretended to be one for me for about ten years.

After my second child, Emma, was born, Yah put it deep in me that He loved me, that He was real, and that I was His. He became so real to me that I wanted to go to church and read the Bible to know this loving Elohim who had saved me more times than I could count.

I had my third child, Aiden, in 2005, and that birth brought miracles too. While I was pregnant with him, the doctors gave me two years to live. My heart was declining from hypertrophic cardiomyopathy, and they did not think it could handle a birth. Clearly they were wrong. My heart has since been healed miraculously. The doctors called me and said they did not understand what had happened at all.

A ROCKY START

I had a rocky start in my faith walk. I went to church for about ten years and visited around 20 different places, trying to find where I fit. I never did. I loved worshiping Yah, but I did not fit into a religion.

MY FIRSTBORN

In 2007, my firstborn son, Ian James, was 7 years, 7 months, and 7 days old when he had a heart attack. We were camping far from help. We had been up all night talking because the steroids he took for poison ivy would not let him sleep. When he stood up to go fishing with his dad, his heart came out of rhythm.

Help was 15 minutes away, so I did CPR on my son with no training, as best I could. They life flighted him, and the doctors worked on him for 45 minutes until they got a heartbeat back. He was in a coma on life support. We were told he had a 0% chance of living. He was a zero on the coma scale for seven days.

Hundreds of people prayed for him all around the world, even missionaries in other countries. On the seventh day, a rainbow came through the room, and he came off life support. He lived six more years. Later, I noticed that the day it happened, when he was 7 years, 7 months, and 7 days old, was the Day of Atonement in September 2007.

Years later, Yah showed me He had been chasing me for ten years with rainbows.

THE GARDEN, THE VISITORS, AND THE PRINTER

Many miracles happened in 2007. Here are three.

While he was on life support, I was in shock. We could not sleep, eat, or even shower. From the hospital window I could see a garden in the center of the building, shaped like a chalice cup. I felt drawn to it, and I asked my husband to help me find it. It was hard to find, but we did. I prayed, cried, and walked there trying to grasp what was happening to my son.

A nurse walked up and asked, "Are you an angel?" I said, "I wish! Why would you ask that?" She told me that area was only for patients who were dying, so they could go outside one more time. It was restricted, with a guard and two locked doors. She asked how I got in. There was no one around when we walked in, and the doors we went through were not locked. I believe Abba made a way where there was no way. I am forever thankful that He opens doors no one can shut. (Revelation 3:7)

During those first seven days, some Native American visitors came to pray with us. They said the Holy Spirit told them to come. They had no way of knowing what had happened to my son. We also have Native American blood in our family. When they left, we turned around and they were gone. There was nowhere for them to go and no explanation. We knew they were angels. (Hebrews 13:2)

One day we went home to get clean clothes and take a shower. Our printer had not worked in six months, and the moment we walked in the door it started printing pages about Messiah and the number 7. We began seeing the number 7 everywhere, and I still do today.

THE SIX YEARS

Taking care of him was hard. We turned him through the night so he would not get bed sores. He had 15 surgeries on his throat so his tracheotomy could be taken out, and eventually it was. He never fully regained the ability to talk or walk. Many times it seemed he was in another world, not mentally with us. He touched many lives during that time.

During those years, as I read the Bible, it seemed to come alive and speak to me personally. My husband was usually there, but he was turning away from Yah because of everything we were going through. I was moving toward Yah.

In 2013, Ian passed from another heart attack. He was 13. After he passed, I felt his presence everywhere. The rainbows surrounded me even more. I have had dreams and visions of him that felt so real. Every part of his life is still woven into mine, and into everything I do even today.

Those six extra years were a blessing. I grew spiritually, and I saw many miracles. I also came to see that it was better for him to go on and be with Yah than to stay on earth in pain. (Psalm 34:18)

He is the most beautiful and painful part of my testimony, and the reason I am so close to Yah now.

WHEN MY MARRIAGE ENDED

The first seven years of my marriage were good. The last seven years were an unraveling. I saw who I was becoming and who he was not. He carried control issues and demons from his childhood. He did not want me to pray or live out my faith anymore. He told me I could not pray, and that is where the marriage ended. He later became an atheist, and I grew even closer to Yah.

I want my children to know that I loved their father, and I loved being a family with all of them. But it was never going to work, because he did not want to let go of those things and be delivered, and I needed to be closer to Yah. Nothing mattered more.

WHAT YAH SHOWED ME ABOUT FORGIVENESS

Forgiveness is the root of deliverance. Unforgiveness opens the door for demons to have legal contracts to torment you. When I held on to unforgiveness, I gave the enemy ground in my life. (Ephesians 4:26-27)

Yah showed me that pride is the root of unforgiveness, and humility is the root of forgiveness. (James 4:6)

I had to forgive my first husband for the way he hurt me. I had to forgive my parents for not watching over me more closely. Over 21 years, I learned how to forgive. It is a process. It takes time, and it takes purposely continuing in that forgiveness, day after day. (Matthew 6:14-15)

Forgiving someone is not the same as staying under their harm. I can forgive, and I can still walk away from what was hurting me.

MY DELIVERANCE

In 2017, I began reading the Scriptures for myself, and that is where my relationship with Yah grew even stronger. At the beginning of that year, I fasted and prayed for three weeks. I asked Him what I should call Him. I personally wanted to know, because there were so many names. He said, "Yahshua." It came like a breath, and it is hard to describe. He did not spell it for me. I just heard it. That is the only time I have heard Him speak to me verbally and in my spirit. Up until that point I had always called Him Jesus.

That set me on a Hebrew journey. He showed me to keep the Sabbath and the feasts. He also began showing me the stars, and how they are His story written above. All of it drew me deeper into Him. He went from someone I loved to the love of my life.

In those first years, He opened my eyes to the sin I was holding on to. I had a problem with lust. The Jezebel spirit had been working in me since I was a child. He showed me my addictions and delivered me. I put down alcohol, nicotine, marijuana, and pills, and most of all the Jezebel spirit. I did not do it in my own strength. I did it walking with my Messiah.

When I look back at how dirty I was coming into this walk, it makes me sick. But I also see that He carried me and loved me even then. Now I walk in purity, and it feels so good. I do not carry the guilt or the shame, because He took me out of it. It took me almost 40 years to find out who I was. Some people are slower than others.

ALYSSA AND THE SEVEN YEARS ALONE

In 2015, I married a second time. It was a rebound, it was not built on Yah, and it lasted one year. The one good gift that came from it is my daughter, Alyssa. She is strong-willed, a lot like me, only stronger.

From 2016 to 2023, I walked alone with Yahshua for seven years. I was not perfect in those years. I fell more than once, but I kept getting back up, and I got to purity. In 2023, I was praying for a husband while Alyssa was praying for a father.

MICHAEL

Yah used a friend to open the door at just the right time. She reminded me that if Yah could transform my life, He could do the same in a man. I am sure Yah used her to help me realize it was possible.

Michael and I had been connected through friends for years, and we were friends on Facebook, but it was the right time for both of us. We quickly found we had chemistry. I think I knew by day two that he was my soulmate. Michael was already living a transformed life. I could see his past, and I could see that he was a true believer on fire for Yah.

We had our ceremony on September 29, 2023. Alyssa was 8 when we met, and she had been praying for a father. We have been growing, happy, and thriving ever since.

Michael walks with me, and he makes me a better, stronger, more spiritual person. He accelerates me and amplifies me toward the Kingdom and my King of kings. He reads the Bible to me every morning. He prays for us every morning and every evening and in between. He is faithful and loyal. We are equally yoked.

FOR YOU

If you are hurting, hear me. You can lose a child, a marriage, and everything you thought was true, and Yah is still faithful. You have to hold on to Him. It is the only way.

HalleluYah

Walk in truth. Walk in Light. Shalom.
